DESCRIPTION

Previously unreleased album recorded in 1967 by cult UK psych-pop band Living Daylights, led by Garth Watt-Roy and his younger brother (and future Ian Dury & The Blockhead) Norman and famous for their fabulous Rubbles classic 'Let's Live For Today/I'm Real' 45 (also included here!). Originally from Harlow, Living Daylights signed with Beatles publisher Dick James and their studio production team included famous studio musician Caleb Quay. Their 1967 recording sessions resulted in just a couple 45s/EPs with the remaining tracks unreleased until now. Highly recommended if you like Rubber Soul/Revolver era Beatles, Hollies, Kinks, Zombies, The Who, Mirage. Remastered sound in mono. Includes insert with liner notes by David Wells and photos.

"Another dropped stitch in the tapestry of late Sixties British psychedelic pop." – David Wells
