DESCRIPTION

Noema's new album is a surreal cosmic journey. The music is part of a comprehensive art piece that includes remixes, interactive choreography and stage design, theater, and costumes called One. In One, Noema tells the story of his interdimensional space explorations, in which he manifests as four different entities. Because of the energetic state of humanity, these entities became trapped in our dimension and now put on performances to re-power their portal, so that we can all be interdimensional again. During the performance five actors invite up to 120 people from the audience to join the action. Sun Ra meets Steve Reich meets Larry Levan – imagine it as a "happening" from the '70s. The music from One is loosely based on the minimal music classic In C by Terry Riley. It consists of 56 melodic patterns, which are repeated and consecutively played from the first to the last. Every player can move on to the next pattern at their own pace.
