DESCRIPTION

The ninth studio album of the band Tumido features trumpet player Alex Kranabetter (Soap and Skin, Voodoo Jürgens). For more than 20 years, Tumido has been on the lookout for something new, always on the move, focused on energy in any form, driving rhythms, powerful bass, spacey drones. Trumpet has always been a big part of their sound universe, so it felt very natural to collaborate with a master of trumpet sounds, Alex Kranabetter, and record an album together. "Lithox" – a maelstrom you can't escape, sucked in by a hypnotic bass and driving rhythms into a trance world you don't want to leave. "Dwa" – a summer hit out of Hades on the slide to hell. "180°" – a volcanic eruption on a lonely island. "Dirt Rodeo" – the branches of the fire tree dance with laughter, clouds of smoke cloud the senses and the landing is a success.
