DESCRIPTION

Walls is the fifth full-length album for Apparat. Despite its title, Walls isn't about dividing lines. Instead, it describes a circle that pulls many elements together into a protected, enclosed space where they jostle and roam free: strings and mallet instruments; rock guitar and gravelly sawtooth synths; stuttering digital percussion and muscular studio drumming. Important guests and collaborators on this record include Telefon Tel Aviv's Josh Eustis, who did the album's final mixdown in Chicago, as well as the talented Raz Ohara, who contributes his smoky vocals. Apparat has melded his genius as a sound designer with his growing songwriting talents to craft 14 songs brimming with ideas, energy, texture, light, color. They are hummable, embraceable, swimmable, possibly edible.

HIGHLIGHTS

- "Walls features wistful, willowy productions akin to emo by Eno, a touch of Massive Attack-meets-Michael Mayer, all enveloping 500-thread count furnishings." -Urb
- "With Walls ... Ring has absorbed his life experience into an expansive, warm, and endlessly enjoyable document, one that challenges the boundaries of previously explored territory while inviting discovery of new elements of emotion and sound." -Prefixmag.com
